

Northam part of national campaign

Day's start: At the MAX Employment breakfast are Venessa Miler from MAX Employment, Alan Jelly from C.Y. O'Connor Institute, Len Vose from Bradken, Wundowie, Denese Smythe from RDA Wheatbelt, Michelle Fryer-Hornsby from Directions and Sharon Bray from Department of Education.

MAX Employment continues to raise the profile of its Northam office.

On Monday of last week they participated in the group's national Great Aussie Jobs Christmas Campaign.

The day began with a breakfast for potential employers at the MAX Employment office and later in the day staff distributed fairy cakes to local businesses.

These businesses were given forms on which potential job vacancies could be listed.

The aim of the campaign is to have 10,000 job seekers placed in work by Christmas.

The campaign will support The Smith Family, a charity which helps disadvantaged children.

For every person placed into ongoing work during the campaign, MAX Employment will make a donation.

Venessa Miler from MAX Employment said they offer a comprehensive range of employment services.

"Our recruitment service is absolutely free of charge, we can offer a substantial wage subsidy for eligible job seekers, provide work clothing and equipment and where necessary provide workplace modification for any job seeker with a disability," she said.
